

Consortium Share Redemption Rules

Consortium Stock

Since the Consortium won its bid to become a merchant house in Amthydor, the value of their shares has changed. Shares can be redeemed as noted below.

Cash Redemption

A share of Consortium stock may be redeemed during any LSJ module or interactive where you have time to spend in the city. You may sell a share for the going value of the share (currently 300 gp, which may change in the future). Void the cert, add the amount to your gained gold total for the module and note on the log that you did so. Any shares, including those obtained from other PCs, may be cashed in this way.

Traded Shares

Consortium share certs may be sold or traded between PCs as they see fit. These shares may be kept or redeemed for the going value of the share at the time of sale. Traded stock certs may NOT be redeemed for a position in the company (see below).

Positions in the Consortium

PCs may now redeem shares to gain positions in the company. The position is determined by how many shares the PC owns that specifically have that PC's name printed on the front of the cert; traded certs from other PCs do not count for this purpose, though they can be redeemed for gold as noted above.

The Consortium Redemption Certificate is available on the LSJ website (www.theshiningjewel.com) for download. Players who wish to use it may have their next GM sign the certificate after attaching redeemed stock share certs. ALL REDEEMED SHARE CERTS MUST BE ATTACHED OR THIS CERT IS VOID.

The Consortium Redemption Certificate is not valid unless it has the redeemed Consortium shares attached to it with the PC's NAME (one per "Free Enterprises" module played per PC, maximum four possible shares). These shares must have been earned by the PC in modules and cannot be traded from other PCs for this purpose.

Positions function as jobs or responsibilities a PC may maintain. They are detailed below.
